Peniarth	During this difficult time for everyone, the Peniarth team is keen to support teachers, and parents, as best we can. On the issue of recording readings, or performances, of Peniarth publications, we agree that:

	You can record a reading of a book, or part of a book, and place it on a closed platform (that is, one that is open to the school community only, and not publicly available for anyone to find and use). You can publish a live reading of a book, or part of a book, on a public platform – for example social media – on the understanding that it is a live reading only. It should only be available during the live broadcast period. You can record live readings (point 2) but after the live reading, the recording is expected to be available on a closed platform only, in accordance with point 1, above. We extend the above permission subject to the following conditions: That, at the beginning of the recording, the following details be noted: The name of the work, The author’s name, The illustrator’s name, That the recording be made “with the permission of Peniarth”. Read the book, or part of it, word for word. All recordings of Peniarth’s work made on a non-commercial basis are available free of charge. If broadcasting on social media, tag the author, illustrator, and publisher (Peniarth) where possible. That a recording, or a link to a recording, be sent to post@peniarth.cymru please. That you agree that we may use the recording for Peniarth’s marketing purposes. We will not use a recording without first contacting you and we will always acknowledge who is responsible for the recording. We would love to hear from you! To keep in touch you can use the following methods: Email: post@peniarth.cymru Facebook: @Peniarth Instagram: @canolfan_peniarth Twitter: @CPeniarth
Rily	Because many of our books are adaptations, we do not have the authority to give permission for use. We have no objection in principle, but the copyright belongs to the UK publisher who published the original book we adapted. The identity of the original publisher (e.g. Penguin Random House, Hachette etc.) can be checked on the imprint section of the book. Individuals may wish to contact the publisher, asking for permission to use the Rily (WELSH) adaptation of the book, and also naming the English language version. If they consent, then individuals can contact us at Rily for further information and to confirm further approval.
